ALLEN THOMPSON, 6 years, of Logan street, Roxbury, and his little sixteen-months-old sister, Anna, who were killed by gas.

Denies She Was at Movies as Gas Killed Children

Mrs. Gertrude Thompson of Logan street, Roxbury, today denied to the AMERICAN that she was attending a movie show when three of her children were overcome by gas in their home.

The woman declared that she was at home all the evening, and from 7:30 until after 10 o'clock was reading to her oldest son, James, Jr., who is ten years of age.

Two of the children, Anna, sixteen months, and Allen, six years, are dead, but Stoddard, four years, is expected to recover at the City Hospital, where all three were taken.

"I can only explain the terrible thing that has happened," said Mrs. Thompson today, "by the fact that one of the children must have stood up in bed and turned on the gas. I put them all to bed, and when I left the room they were all right. I went into the front room with James, my oldest child, and from 7:30 until after 10 o'clock read to him.

"At that time he said he smelled gas, but I have catarrh and therefore could smell nothing. James went to the rear of the house, and traced the gas to the bedroom. When he opened the door the room was filled with fumes. He cried out, and I rushed to the room, and opened the windows. Then I snatched up the children, but they were unconscious."

UNANIMOUS FOR FERNCROFT LICENSE

Ferncroft, the Inn which figured prominently in the "Toodles" case, and now owned by "Hap" Ward, was today granted a first-class, fourth class and innholders license, as a result of a special meeting of the Middleton Board of Selectmen. The vote was unanimous.

VILLISTAS TAKE U.S. TOWN

An Armed Force of Five Hundred Mexicans Cross Rio Grande; Americans Driven from Homes

Presidio, Texas, April 29.—Between five and six hundred armed Villistas have crossed the Rio Grande River at La Jitas, Tex., seventy-five miles from the nearest railroad point, and have taken possession of the town, according to telegraphic messages reaching here from Americans coming from La Jitas by automobile.

There had been no fighting, according to the Americans, no resistance being offered, but several stores had been looted.

La Jitas is fifteen miles from Tolinga, where several mines, employing about thirty Americans, are situated. A corporal and twelve American soldiers are at Tolinga.

According to the Americans, the bandits announced themselves Villistas and said they were working under General Placido Pinto Villanuevo, who, with 200 more men, was a few miles south of the border.

They were then in possession of about twenty miles of United States territory.

Grave fears are entertained for the safety of the Americans at Tolinga.

Obregon Cordially Receives Funston

Washington, April 29.—The first official report on the preliminary conference at Juarez between Generals Scott and Funston and Mexican minister of War Obregon received at the War Department today, stated that the meeting was cordial.

Secretary of War Baker received the following telegram from Chief of Staff Scott dated last night:

"We had a very pleasing call with General Obregon at Juarez this evening. General Obregon will return the call at El Paso tomorrow."

Indications pointed to a deadlock when the formal conference opened today. From the deadlock is expected to develop a compromise which will be acceptable to the governments of both Mexico and the United States.

Well informed observers of the situation regard it as practically assured that the situation will not develop into a crisis that will lead to a war between the two countries. The conference is expected to last for several days.

Today's session was expected to be given up to setting forth of the demands of the two countries through their soldier-diplomats. These may be summarized as follows:

United States—American troops will not be withdrawn from Mexico until such time as bandit operations have been completely terminated and American lives on American soil are safe from marauding Mexicans.

Mexico—The American troops must be immediately withdrawn, because their presence in Mexico threatens to lead to a popular revolt that will upset all the work of pacification that the de facto government of Mexico has accomplished.

KAISER IS FOR PEACE WITH U.S.

Ambassador Gerard to Convey to the President the Emperor's Desire for Unbroken Friendship

Washington, April 29.—Ambassador Gerard is expected to return to Berlin today following his conference with the Kaiser at the main headquarters of the German army in France. One authoritative report here was that the Kaiser's purpose in inviting Gerard to see him was in order to make a personal plea for peace with the United States in the submarine crisis.

Ambassador Gerard is to convey to President Wilson a statement of the Emperor's desire and that of the German people to remain on terms of unbroken friendship and good will with the United States, it was stated.

This view makes a point of the belief in some circles that Germany will make concessions to the United States, but will emphasize the fact that it is done simply as a mark of friendship for this country.

Present at the conference with the Kaiser also were Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg, General von Falkenhayn and Admiral Holtzendorf according to Berlin dispatches.

DO NOT EXPECT RUPTURE.

An Administration official, familiar with the exchanges between Washington and Berlin, said there would be no break between the United States and Germany because of the latest acute phase of the submarine controversy.

President Wilson and the Cabinet discussed the submarine situation in particular reference to the armed merchantmen phase of the question which was brought to the fore by Mr. Lansing's recent memorandum on the subject.

There were evidences that if the armed ship issue becomes acute before the submarine is settled, there may be a renewal of a demand for warning Americans off belligerent merchantmen.

SHIPS ARMED TO RESIST.

State Department officials admitted that "Americans traveling on armed belligerents do so at their own risk."

It has been brought to the attention of the department that all American travellers are not aware of this risk. They do not know, as the State Department knows, it was said, that British merchant ships are armed to resist and have orders to fire at submarines if their officers assume the submarine plans an aggressive act.

It was argued that the American travellers should know of the risk they run before placing themselves at the mercy of a ship officer who may jeopardize their lives to save his ship and cargo.

PROCLAIM IRELAND A REPUBLIC

Independence Announced by Revolutionary Leaders in Wireless from City of Dublin

London, April 29. — A number of women were burned to death in fires started by fighting between rebels and soldiers in the streets of Dublin, says a dispatch received this afternoon. A big area in the business district was wiped out. The postoffice was partly destroyed, as well as Eden Quay, the Hotel Metropole, the Coliseum Music Hall, and scores of business houses and dwellings have been burned.

The Duke of Manchester is worried over the safety of the Duchess (formerly Miss Helen Zimmerman of Cincinnati) and children, who have been visiting Lady Granard (formerly Miss Beatrice Mills of New York), in the affected area of Ireland.

London, April 29.—Ireland has been proclaimed a republic by the Sinn Fein leaders.

Peter Pearce, head master of St. Endas secondary school, has been named provisional president.

News of the action of the rebels in declaring Ireland free and independent of the British government was sent out from the revolutionary headquarters in the Dublin postoffice by wireless.

The message follows:

"Peter Pearce, head master of St. Endas secondary school, has been nominated president of the republic of Ireland.

"James Connolly has been

Lynn Mother Throws Herself Under a Train

The woman has been in poor health recently. She had been seen waiting near the crossing for half an hour. When the engineer saw her on the track he blew the whistle and she moved to one side, then knelt beside the track and, as the last car sped by attempted to plunge under the wheels.

TURKS CAPTURE TOWNSHEND ARMY

By FRANK TEWSON,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, April 29.—The British army, under General Townshend, which has been shut up in Kut-el-Amara, Mesopotamia, since early in December, has surrendered to the Turks.

Official announcement of the surrender of the army of General Townshend, which is estimated to contain 10,000 men, was made today by the War Office.

This is the second severe blow administered to the British by the Turks.

The first was the reverse administered at the Dardanelles. The second, at Kut-el-Amara, shatters the hopes of those who looked for an early resumption of the advance against Bagdad.

The chief stages of the defence of Kut-el-Amara and the attempts at relief by an army under General Sir Percy Lake, follow:

LONG FIGHT FOR CITY.

December 3.—General Townshend's force reaches Kut-el-Amara from Ctesiphon.

December 5.—Turks' advance column reached Sheikh Saad, forty-five miles below Kut-el-Amara, completing the isolation of the British garrison.

December 8.—Five days' attack begun, the Turkish losses up to December 18 alone being estimated at 1,000 men.

December 18.—The British garrison's losses up to this date were estimated at 1,127 men.

December 25.—Fierce fighting lasted throughout Christmas Day. Forts on the northern front of Kut-el-Amara were taken by the Turks, but recaptured by the British in bloody counter-assaults.

January 6.—Advance of the relief force under General Nixon begun. (General Nixon was afterward relieved by Sir Percy Lake, chief of staff for India.)

January 7.—An action of great violence at Sheikh Saad, on the Tigris River, fought. Followed by a retreat of the Turks.

January 21.—British attack at Umm-el-Hannah, twenty-three miles from Kut-el-Amara, repulsed.

February 13, 17 and 19.—Bombs dropped on Kut-el-Amara from aeroplanes moved to the front by Germans.

April 5.—General Gorringe carries first and second lines of the Turkish positions at Umm-el-Hannah and Fetahieh.

April 9.—Sanna-i-Yat position attacked in an effort to relieve Kut. General Gorringe defeated.

BAGDAD WAS PRIZE SOUGHT.

Ever since April 9 the British on both sides of the Tigris, east of Sanna-i-Yat, have been trying to break through, as dispatches sent out of Kut by General Townshend said his position was getting desperate.

A relief ship sent out several days ago from Imam-ali-Gherbi tried to get through to Kut, but went aground in the Tigris and the attempt ended in failure.

The attempts of the British relief army to cut through another route were not only hindered by the fierce attacks of the Turks, often led by German officers, but by floods caused by heavy rains.

The size of the garrison is not definitely known. General Townshend originally had a brigade, but these troops were reinforced. At Ctesiphon the army suffered 4,500 casualties and subsequent losses brought the total list of casualties up to nearly 7,000. These do not include the casualties suffered by the army since it has been shut up in Kut.

The objective of the original expedition was Bagdad, the richest prize in the Persian Gulf sphere of operations.

But for the guns, ammunition, aeroplanes and other supplies, not to mention the officers, furnished by Germany, the Turks would probably have been unable to stem the British advance.

Latest War Bulletins

Amsterdam, April 29.—Frontier reports state that a Zeppelin airship was destroyed at Zeebrugge early this week, all the superstructure being consumed by fire. The framework was sent to Germany to be used in the construction of another airship.

Halifax, N. S., April 29.—Eighteen thousand Canadian soldiers sailed from Halifax for England on Wednesday. They were carried on the steamers Metagama, Calgarian, Empress of Britain and Lapland, and were convoyed by the British cruiser Suffolk.

LONG CASUALTY LIST IN IRISH REBELLION

nominated commander-in-chief of the Irish Volunteer Corps (the republican army)."

An Exchange Telegraph dispatch received this afternoon says:

"There was every indication Friday night that the end of the revolutionary movement was fast approaching. Troops are arriving in Dubli ncontinually. The fighting of the past twenty-four hours has been only intermittent."

More than 500 persons have been killed and wounded in the Irish rebellion, according to an official estimate.

There has been fighting in at least seven Irish counties in the southeastern and western parts of the island.

Many women, some of them in green uniforms, fought side by side with the rebels in the trenches in St. Stephen's Green, Dublin. It is believed some of these women were killed. It is known some were wounded.

The exact number of dead may never be known, for bodies of rebels were removed at night by sympathizers and secretly buried.

Five hundred prisoners have been captured by the British forces, including some women. There was an abortive uprising in the city of Cork, in which at least two persons were killed.

Part of the city of Dublin has been destroyed by fire and a big section has been looted. From ten thousand to fifteen thousand rebels took part in the revolt.

TIGHTEN CORDON OF TROOPS.

The cordon of troops thrown around the southern and western parts of Dublin is being drawn closer and closer about the remaining forces of the rebels, and it is believed they will surrender.

In Sackville street, in Dublin, the rebels still hold some improvised barracks in the streets, but the men are cut off from supplies and the military officials believe they will surrender.

British troops in the district northwest of the Four Courts, in Dublin, are proceeding in a methodical way to clear the buildings of snipers, but, in the words of Field Marshal French "the clearance of these snipers is a matter of time."

The worst fires in the Irish capital, Field Marshal French says, occurred in the district around Sackville street, where the fighting was very severe on Thursday.

Field Marshal French's report, which was issued at midnight, says in part:

"In the other parts of Ireland the principal centres of disturbance are in County Galway and in Enniscorthy. Disturbances are also reported at Killarney, Clonmel and Gorey.

"The other parts of Ireland appear normal."

LOCAL DISTURBANCES.

The trend of the reports received indicates that the disturbances are of local character.

In their operations, particularly in Dublin, the Sinn Feiners were reinforced by Radicals, followers of James Larkin, the well known labor leader.

Details of the first day's fighting say that the rebels placed small bodies of armed men throughout the outskirts of Dublin. At a signal these began firing to distract the attention of the soldiery and constables while the main body made an attack upon the postoffice, the cast occupied by the lord lieutenant, the Hotel Metropole, Four Courts, Stephen's Green, Trinity College and the fashionable Shelbourne Hotel.

CUT TELEGRAPH WIRES.

Telegraph wires were cut and a detachment broke into the telephone exchange and smashed all the instruments. All along Sackville street the rebels broke into stores, carrying the counters and other articles into the streets for the erection of barricades. During the afternoon and night of Monday the postoffice changed hands several times.

The rebels were well armed, although their weapons were of various patterns. It was regarded as remarkable that all their guns were provided with bayonets.

It was part of the plan to seize the barracks, but the rebels were easily frustrated in this attempt.

When the British forces began to rain shell fire against Liberty Hall, the headquarters of the rebels, many people became terror stricken and fled from the city.

The capture of the Dublin Postoffice is thus described:

"Just upon the stroke of noon on Monday 100 young men wearing bandoliers and soft hats with bands of green ribbons and all armed with rifles bearing bayonets rushed into postal building and brusquely ordered all the officials and clerks to leave.

"There were about 300 employes at work at the time. Postal officials tried to reason with the rebels, but they brandished their bayonetted rifles in such dangerous fashion that discretion was deemed the better part of valor. As the postal employes fled the rebels began turning the building into a blockhouse, while a body went to the roof and began firing into the streets at constables and soldiers."

SCORES OF HOSPITALS.

Scores of buildings in Dublin and on the outskirts have been turned into hospitals. In some of these wounded soldiers and wounded rebels lie side by side. Some of the soldiers that were rushed to Dublin from England were seasoned veterans who had campaigned against the Germans in France.

They declare that the rebels put up a fight of the most desperate character and that many of them who could have saved their lives by surrendering refused to do so.

"The worst act of the rebels," says the Daily Mall, "was the shooting of national reserve men, many of them elderly men, who were returning after a parade march with their rifles, but no cartridges. The rebels blazed away from windows at a fifty-yard range, felling reserve men."

A dispatch to the Chronicle says:

"The rebels were mostly armed with old rifles and a wonderful collection of bayonets. Some of the bullets were a type that inflicted the most terrible wounds. A striking figure among the rebels, was an elderly woman, a reputed leader, who wore a uniform consisting of green tunic and trousers and who carried a rifle with a bayonet affixed.

"On Wednesday morning, two small field pieces were sent into action by the British troops and soon Liberty Hall was a mass of ruins. The rebels did not reply and the English troops with cheers dashed forward and occupied the ruins."

URGED POSTPONEMENT.

It is reported from both Dublin and Cork, that cooler heads among the rebels wanted to postpone the uprising, but that they were overborne by the more fiery leaders who had just learned of the capture of Sir Roger Casement by the British.

The Sinn Feiners are said to resent angrily the charge that the rebellion was fostered and financed by Germans. They claim it is a purely Irish movement.

Demands for the resignation of Augustine Birrell, Secretary for Ireland, and Lord Wimborne will be made in Parliament next week.

King George has been deeply moved by the revolt. He is said to have requested Premier Asquith to furnish him with all the data relating to it.

FIRST DETAILS OF BATTLE IN DUBLIN GIVEN BY EYEWITNESSES

By International News Service.

London, April 29.—The London Mail prints the following from Holyhead:

Al Cole of London, who has just arrived from Dublin, says that on Wednesday a gunboat came up the river and demolished Liberty Hall. Three hundred revolutionists were said to have been inside the building, but Cole stated that this may have been one of the wild reports that were prevalent at the time.

Later, he heard sounds of cheering, and near Ball's bridge met a number of soldiers and marines. He was talking with some of them, when from a peaceful house down the road there came a rattle of rifle fire, followed by the ping of bullets.

At that point that night, there was engagements in which several soldiers were wounded. The rebels had barricades in Sackville street and barbed wire across it.

"One of my friends," he said, "was not allowed to leave a hotel, and I presume the Sinn Feiners still hold the street.

"On Thursday I managed to get to Kingstown in a jaunting car and as I left I saw a big fire."

TELLS OF FIGHTING.

Another Londoner, W. A. Reid, said:

I arrived in Dublin on Monday and was passing King's bridge in a cab when people came running shouting for us to turn back, as it was dangerous to proceed.

We tried to get through on foot, but a volley of shots made us halt. We spent the night in a billiard saloon. On Tuesday morning we reached Upper Mount street without mishap, though we heard firing during the day.

On Wednesday we went to Davis' provision store at the corner of a bridge, but found the military in charge, they having driven the rebels out.

The military began to arrive in the evening and proceeded to creep to houses ccupied by the rebels, taking what cover they could. The snipers were ready, however. I saw some soldiers badly wounded.

IRL PROVES HEROINE.

It took us all aback for a few minutes, when we were inspired to action by the bravest deed I ever saw.

An Irish girl, not more than sixteen, dashed out of a house and ran like a deer in the face of a hail of snipers' bullets; grasped a wounded soldier under the arms and dragged him to where others were ready to carry him to a hospital. She then went back for another stricken man.

Her example inspired all the nurses and doctors of a hospital nearby, and with clergy and civilians we joined in the rescue. But that young girl led us all the time with loud cries. She deserved the Victoria Cross.

As far as I know, when I left the rebels were still holding Sackville street, West Land Row Station, the postoffice and a number of big houses. Noblett's confectionery store at the corner of Grafton street was ransacked, as were a number of other establishments, by riffraff, who took advantage of the reign of terror.

PEOPLE ARE WARY.

There are many reports of what is happening in the more remote parts of Ireland, but they are conflicting. The people are charry of expressing opinions, for they say "the man next to you may be a Sinn Feiner."

It appears that advance guards of the troops from England were allowed to enter Dublin without mishap. The heavy firing was reserved for the later bodies.

PENNSYLVANIA FOR T. R. ON STRAW VOTE

Philadelphia, April 29.—Colonel Roosevelt received 6,000 more votes than Governor Martin G. Brumbaugh in the city and State poll for preference for a Republican candidate for the Presidency, which was conducted by the Evening Telegraph and co-operating newspapers throughout Pennsylvania.

There were 26,330 votes cast, and Roosevelt's ratio was more than three to one. The Colonel received 10,783, while Governor Brumbaugh followed him with 3,893. Third was Justice Charles E. Hughes with 3,279.

WAR SUMMARY

A London estimate, nevertheless unofficial, puts the number of dead and wounded in the Irish revolt at over 500. The British forces have taken 500 prisoners, including some women. The London cables add that women were among the revolutionists who entrenched themselves on St. Stephen's Green in Dublin and fought side by side with the men.

The London Daily News reports that the revolutionists at this point were driven out by bomb attack and machine gun fire, leaving the inevitable inference that the lives of women, as well as men, have been sacrificed. The government claims that the rioters are being suppressed, but this is the sixth day of the bloody trouble and the revolutionists still hold part of Sackville street in Dublin.

The Crown Prince is making another smash against Verdun, according to a statement from Paris, but so far without gain. The Teuton attack extended along a fifteen-mile front on both sides of the Meuse, the German troops trying hand grenades and liquid fire. The French War Office claims to have driven the Germans back with heavy losses at every point.

England swallowed a bitter pill today when the British War Office officially admitted the surrender of General Townshend's force, which has been besieged in Kut-el-Amara by the Turks since December. It is estimated that 10,000 men surrendered, all that were left of a force which started from India 50,000 strong.

The Turks have chalked up other scores, as well, according to Constantinople. They drove back the Russian right wing south of Bitlis over a mile for heavy losses. They annihilated about 800 British troopers at Quatia, twenty-five miles east of the Suez Canal, and their aviators dropped bombs on docks and camps along the Suez Canal from Port Said to El Kantara, fifty miles inland on the big waterway.

TREASON TO IRELAND, SAYS JOHN REDMOND

By JOHN REDMOND.

London, April 29.—My first feeling on hearing of this insane movement in Dublin was one of horror, of discouragement and almost of despair.

I asked myself whether Ireland, as so often before in her tragic history, was to dash the cup of liberty from her lips? Was the insanity of a small section of her people once again to turn all her marvellous victories of the last few years into irreparable defeat, and send her back, on the very eve of her final recognition as a free nation into another long night of slavery, incalculable suffering and weary and uncertain struggle?

For look at the position of Ireland today. In the space of forty years she by constitutional movement has made almost unbrokenly a triumphal march from poverty and slavery to prosperity and freedom. She has won back the possession of the Irish land, she has stayed emigration, she has at last begun an era of national prosperity. Finally, she succeeded in placing on the statute books the greatest charter of freedom ever offered her since the days of her creation.

Is all this to be lost?

When the war came she made her choice, which was inevitable if she was to be true to all the principles which she has held through all her history, and which she has just so completely vindicated on her own soil, namely, the rights of small nations, sacred to the people of nationality, liberty and democracy. More of the nations for which through all her history she had felt a sympathy that came from their common principles and common aspirations, were being trampled as she, in her time, had been trampled under the iron heel of an arrogant force. What has Ireland suffered in the past Poland, Alsace, Belgium and Serbia have not suffered at the hands of Germany, and I may add also that portion of the soil of France her old friend and ally, which is in the hands of Germany?

What has been the record of Germany but the suppression of nationality freedom of language—in short, the suppression of all the things which for centuries Ireland has struggled or the victory of which the Irish have achieved?

Take the case of Belgium. Has there not been there the same ruthless shedding of blood of priests and people that is a part of Ireland's own history?

Leave the principle out and consider the question of the mere interests of Ireland herself. What did the situation demand?

Neutrality? That is impossible. Hostility to the just cause of the allies? Is there any sane man in Ireland who does not see that this meant the crowning of newly-won liberties for Ireland and Irish blood?

Be these views right or wrong, this was the opinion of an overwhelming majority of the Irish people. It is the opinion which thousands of Irish soldiers have sealed with their blood by dying for the cause of the liberty of Ireland and of the world. But, anyhow, it was the opinion of Ireland, and surely I need not argue principle, especially with anybody who professes himself to be a Home Ruler.

That policy of Ireland must be decided by Ireland herself. That is the principle which has been accepted by the Irish race everywhere. Millions of our people in the United States and elsewhere, whose generous devotion has helped us so largely to win our victories for the Motherland of the race, have always accepted it. However bounteous their help, never have they denied the right of Ireland to choose her policy for herself.

That doctrine has been contested only by the very same men who today tried to make Ireland the catspaw of Germany.

In all our long struggle to obtain Home Rule we have been thwarted and opposed by the same section.

We won Home Rule, not through them, but in spite of them.

This wicked move of theirs was their last blow at Home Rule. It was not half as much treason to the cause of the allies as it was treason to the cause of Home Rule.

This attempted deadly blow at Home Rule carried on through this section, is made more wicked and insolent by the fact that Germany plotted it, Germany organized it and Germany paid for it.

So far as Germany's share is concerned, it is a German invasion of Ireland as brutal, as selfish and as cynical as was Germany's invasion of Belgium. Blood has been spilled, and if Ireland has not been reduced to the same horrors as Belgium with her starving people, her massacred priests and her violated convents, it is not the fault of Germany.

And the final aggravation of the movement is this:

The misguided, insane young men who have taken part in this movement in Ireland have risked, and some of them have lost, their lives. But what am I to say of those men who have sent them into this insane antipatriotic movement, while they remained safe in the remoteness of American cities?

I might add that this movement has been set in motion by this same class of man at the very moment when America is demanding reparation for the blood of innocent American men, women and children shed by Germany. And thus they are guilty of double treason to the generous land that received them as well as the land that gave them birth.

Is it not a national horror that on the very day when we hear that the men of the Dublin Fusileers have been killed by Irishmen in the streets of Dublin, we receive news of how men of the Sixteenth Division Brigade and of the same Dublin Fusileers had dashed forward and by their unconquerable bravery had retaken the trenches that the Germans had won at Hulluch?

Was there ever such a picture of tragedy as that which a small section of Irish faction has inflicted on the fairest hopes and bravest deeds of Ireland?

As to the final result, I do not believe this wicked and insane movement will achieve its ends. The German plot has failed. A majority of the people of Ireland retain their calmness, fortitude and unity. They abhor this attack on their interests, their rights, hopes and principles.

Home Rule has not been destroyed. It remains indestructible.

Call Reserves at Irish Meeting in N. Y.

By International News Service.

New York, April 29.—Police reserves were called to disperse a crowd of anti-British Irish who resented the forcible ejection of one of their friends from a meeting of the Royalist United Irish League's New York branch, in Emmet Arcade, Madison avenue and Fifty-Ninth street.

Captain Stephen McFarland was about to call to order a meeting of the branch when he saw a man and woman he did not recognize as members seated in the rear. He was about to speak when others in the crowd caught sight of the intruders.

"Throw them out," shouted one excited man. Instantly half a dozen others sprang toward the couple. Dr. John J. Coyle reached them first. He begged that they be allowed to leave the hall of their own accord. The attacking party fell back a few feet and Dr. Coyle asked the man and woman to leave. They refused.

NEW DRIVE AGAINST VERDUN

By the International News Service.

London, April 29.—German troops have resumed their offensive at Verdun. Attacks on a 15-mile front against French positions on both sides of the Meuse River have been launched during the last twenty-four hours. All these attacks were repulsed, the French War Office announced in Paris this afternoon.

In their assaults, the Germans tried all the methods with which they are wont to seek victory. Shells, grenades and liquid flames were pressed into service by the Crown Prince's army in their vain efforts to drive the French out of their positions.

The fighting was terrific on both banks of the Meuse, according to the Paris communique. It opened on the west bank with a grenade attack on the French trenches protecting Hill 304, one of the key positions on Verdun's northwest front. This attack was repulsed. Then came a violent bombardment of the defensive lines at Avocourt, Esnes and Hill No. 304.

When the conflict extended to the east bank the Germans halted a violent bombardment of the French positions near Thiaumont farm to make an attack with liquid fire. Having prepared for this development, the French were also able to repulse this assault.

A German attack on the Douaumont-Vaux front met with the same fate. Heavy losses were inflicted upon the charging enemy.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

The text of the official French communique follows:

"In the Argonne, a surprise attack executed during the night north of Four de Paris enabled us to drive the foe from a trench and return with some prisoners.

"On the left bank of the Meuse, about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, German troops were massed in their communicating trenches north of Hill No. 304 for the purpose of attacking our lines.

"Being immediately attacked with grenades, the enemy was unable to debouch and was scattered. Our artillery blew up an ammunition depot in the same region.

"During the night there was a bombardment in this entire sector, which was particularly violent in the regions of Avocourt, Esnes and Hill No. 304.

"On the right bank the Germans last evening, after a violent artillery preparation directed against our first lines and a curtain of fire of great intensity, launched an attack against our trenches west of Thiaumont farm, in which they used liquid fire.

"Mowed down by our artillery and machine gun fire, the enemy was repulsed with severe losses. At the same time an attack on our positions between Douaumont and Vaux was likewise stopped short by our fire.

LORRAINE ATTACK FAILS.

"On that part of the front the rest of the night was comparatively quiet.

"In Lorraine we repulsed a strong reconnoitering party before Banal wood, south of Domevre.

"In the Vosges a weak attack made by the Germans with grenades on one of our trenches was sharply checked by our curtains of fire."

U. S. INQUIRY ON MISS MASARYK

Washington, April 29.—The State Department today cabled Ambassador Penfield at Vienna to make informal inquiries to learn whether Miss Alice G. Masaryk, former University of Chicago settlement worker, had been executed in Vienna on a charge of treason. It was made clear that no formal representation would be made to the Austrian government, as Miss Masaryk was not an American woman, although her mother was. Ambassador Penfield would do what he could in an informal manner, it was said.

Reports reached this country recently through "underground" channels that Miss Masaryk should be executed, but no confirmation was obtainable.

LAY PLOT TO KILL SULTAN TO PRINCES

London, April 29.—The Daily Mail's Odessa correspondent telegraphs that a conspiracy in which many high officers were concerned has been discovered in Constantinople to murder the Sultan, proclaim his successor and arrest his ministers. The correspondent states that among those arrested are two royal princes.

LUSITANIA MAY BE RAISED

New York, April 29.—The lure of buried treasure of ships with rich cargoes lost at sea has at last captured the imagination of cold-blooded Wall Street men.

A company for raising ships from the bottom of the sea has been formed, and the first project will be an attempt to raise a Ward liner which sank off Cape Hatteras some years ago with $200,000 in silver and $700,000 in non-perishable goods aboard her. An effort to raise the Lusitania may follow.

Among the big financial names in the company—the Interocean Submarine Engineering Company—are those of Percy Rockefeller, George F. Baker, Jr., Charles H. Sabin, Albert H. Wiggin and G. M. P. Murphy.

ADMIRAL CHESTER IN WORK.

Rear Admiral Colby Mitchell Chester, U. S. N., retired; W. D. Franklin, formerly a lieutenant in the United States navy, and George David Stillson, the engineer who raised the United States submarine F-4, off Honolulu, are the men who have convinced Mr. Rockefeller, Mr. Baker, Mr. Sabin and the other incorporators that there are excellent business opportunities in attempting to salvage steam and sailing vessels that plunged to the bottom in stress of storm.

The company is capitalized for $125,000 and there are only twenty-four stockholders. The stock is 7 per cent. cumulative preferred and 10,000 shares of common stock have been issued to the stockholders as a bonus.

The company may decide also to make a specialty of difficult marine engineering, such as the digging of tunnels beneath rivers and caisson work. An effort may be made to salvage the Lusitania, or at least her cargo, including $2,000,000 in gold bullion and a vast fortune in jewels. She lies in 400 feet of water and her location is well known.

TITANIC HOPELESS.

It is only practicable schemes that the company is considering. An effort to salvage the Titanic, for example, would be hopeless, since the great White Star liner is at least 1,700 feet under the surface of the sea.

Attention was called to the fact that 481 merchant vessels, with a tonnage of 1,621,000, have been sunk since the war began, and that the value of these vessels, exclusive of cargoes, is roughly $243,315,000.

The originator of the idea is Rear Admiral Chester, who is now seventy-two years old. He submitted the idea to a young banker, one of the incorporators of the company, and the banker thought so well of the plan that after having it investigated by his agents and receiving a favorable report from them, he lent his name to the concern and opened his check book. Also he interested his friends, many of whom joined him as stockholders.

SAYS 'PAL' KILLED JUNKMAN

"Tracey ordered him to throw up his hands. Cohen laughed. Tracey fired and the man fell. Tracey sat on the bed and put his face on his hands. I said: 'Why did you kill him?' Tracey said: 'I meant to fire over his head.'"

With these words Delevan Joseph Rogers today on the witness stand flatly accused Frank J. Tracey of the murder of Samuel W. Cohen, a South End junkman, on May 29.

Rogers took the stand after his counsel, Attorney Cotter, had dramatically declared that his client had waited to "meet Tracey face to face and under oath to say: 'I saw you fire the shot that killed Samuel Cohen.'"

MOTHER TESTIFIES.

He was followed by Mrs. Louise Rogers, his aged mother. Tears sprang to Rogers' eyes, the first sign of emotion since the beginning of the trial, when the white-haired, fragile little woman told the jury of the early life of her boy.

She described his visit to her in Jersey City on May 31, two days after the murder, and told how he accompanied her to the cemetery, where they put flowers on the grave of his dead brother.

The taking of evidence was completed at 12:30 and during a recess it was decided to adjourn the case until Monday morning, when the arguments will be heard and the judge's charge made.

Rogers said that he was born in Elgin, Ill., 35 years ago, and attended school from the age of six to twelve years. He said that for several years he was a jockey, riding for such well-known racing men as William C. Whitney, J. W. Rogers, "Tom" Barrett, S. S. Brown, the Jersey coal magnate, whose Clifford he rode to a mark of 25¾, and the famous "Father Bill" Daley.

In 1904 Rogers said that he gave up riding because he had begun to put on weight, and then he began to drift about, working at a varied assortment of trades, including that of chauffeur for Judge Reed of the New Jersey Supreme Court. He entered the employ of the Adams Express Company in 1909, he testified, and after working 18 months was sent to the workhouse for the larceny of $200.

When he was released his wife, who he had married in 1908, refused to live with him, and he made his home with his mother.

WORKED IN ROXBURY.

Rogers said that he came to Boston in 1912, and worked in a Dudley street restaurant until he was sent to Deer Island for larceny. He then worked in Rutland, Worcester and the Stebbins Hotel in South Boston as a cook.

On May 17, 1915, Rogers said he met Tracey at the corner of West Springfield street and Shawmut avenue, and until May 29 was with him all the time, living with Tracey in the basement of the West Springfield house. No one else lived with them, de declared.

"On May 28," said Rogers, "we talked in the basement about robbing junkmen, and the next morning we went to a Washington street saloon and had two drinks apiece. Then we went back to the house, and about 9 o'clock went to breakfast. We went back to the house about 10 o'clock and there was no third man there.

"Then we went out Tremont street towards Roxbury, and met Taitel. I had never seen him before. Tracey said: 'There's one. Go get him,' and I did. We both went across the street, and I did the talking. We invited him to a saloon on Washington street, then we left him and we were in a Shawmut avenue saloon when Tracey pointed Taitel out to me at about 11:40. We separated; he went in the front way and Taitel and I went in through the alley. Tracey opened the door and let us in.

ASKS FOR JUNK.

"Taitel said: 'Where is your junk?' and Tracey said: 'In the front cellar.' I went first, then Taitel and then Tracey. After two steps in the cellar, I pulled my gun and said: 'Hands up!' and pointed the gun at Taitel's feet. Tracey took my hand and raised it to Taitel's head. Tracey went through his pockets and took the money.

"Tracey sat down on a pile of ashes and said: 'What shall we do with him?' I said: 'Put him in the closet.' On the way out I went first, then Taitel and then Tracey. The closet door was open and Tracey ordered Taitel to go in. This was about 11:15.

"On May 27 I had pawned Martha Benze's gun for Tracey and gave him the $3. After Taitel was in the closet, Tracey said: 'I want my gun.'

"About 11:30 Tracey left the house after I had given him the ticket for the gun from a bureau drawer. The next time I saw him was about 12:15 when he came up the alley with a man. I hadn't left the cellar. Tracey said: 'I got a man. Take him in the cellar and show him the junk.'

"I did but there was no junk in there. A minute later Tracey said: 'Bring him back here.' I did, Cohen going first. Cohen walked into the kitchen, and got to the end of the set tubs. Tracey was standing in the doorway.

DESCRIBES KILLING.

"I said: 'How much do you pay for copper?' Cohen said: 'Eight cents.' Tracey said: 'We can get ten cents.' Cohen laughed. He was standing with his left arm on the tubs, facing towards the bureau. Tracey ordered him to throw up his hands.

"Cohen laughed. Tracey fired and the man fell. I was at the foot of the bed, about three feet from Cohen. After the shot, I grabbed the man and stopped his head from striking on the sink, and said: 'My God, what have you done?'"

"Tracey sat down on the bed and put his face in his hands. I said: 'Why did you kill him?' Tracey said: 'I meant to fire over his head.'

"I felt the man's heart, but it didn't beat. I felt his pulse and that didn't beat. I put him under the bed. Tracey opened the closet door and showed Taitel the man under the bed. He said: 'Look at all the money we got from him. Why did you only have such a small amount?'"

New York, April 29.—Little John Jacob Astor, who is in his fourth year, is unable to live within his $20,000 a year allowance. His father, John Jacob Astor, Sr., died in the wreck of the Titanic.

His mother, who was Madeline T. Force, has just filed an accounting in the Surrogate's Court showing that she expended the $20,000 allowed for her son's maintenance last year and an additional $7,550 in his behalf from her own funds.

She wants the court to increase his allowance in proportion to the $150,000 annual income which he now receives from a $3,000,000 trust fund created by his father in his will.

Since his birth the child's income has been piling up at an enormous rate, and by the time he is twenty-one will amount to a considerable fortune. The second year, and each year since, Mrs. Astor has been permitted to expend $20,000 of the income, which, in 1915, amounted to $150,000. Already the accumulated income, after deducting allowances, has piled up half a million dollars.

By advice of her counsel, former Justice Henry A. Gildersleeve, Mrs. Astor has charged against her son's allowance one-third of the cost of the taxes and household expenses of the Astor mansion at 840 Fifth avenue. Last year the taxes on this property amounted to $35,530 and the cost of maintaining the household was $29,000 additional.

The boat is 225 feet long, 21 feet deep, and is 7,500 horsepower. H. F. Barrett will be in command.

4 FINED AFTER AUTO BUMPS MILK WAGON

Four Lynn young men, who figured in an automobile-milk wagon crash on Broadway, Chelsea, were fined heavily in the Chelsea court. Three paid and were immediately arrested by the Salem police on charges of breaking and entering and stealing an automobile.

The fourth, Horace Y. Elly, has a choice of paying or appealing and being arrested by the Salem police, or of going to jail and being arrested later. He was fined $10, each on charges of operating without a license and not having a registration certificate. A charge of operating while under the influence of liquor was placed on file.

The cases of the others were disposed of as follows: Clifford Stevens paid fines of $5 for drunkenness and $25 for having baseball lottery tickets in his possession. John F. Kelley and Timothy J. Regan paid fines of $5 each for drunkenness.

BACK BAY AUTOS IN CRASH

Harry D. Smith, married, of Grasmere street, Newton, was arrested early today, after the collision of the automobile he was driving with an automobile driven by George E. Carroll of Commonwealth avenue, in which Hollis Burgess, the well-known yachtsman, was slightly injured. The crash occurred in Charlesgate East, near Commonwealth avenue.

The report that three women were hurled headlong from one of the automobiles, and lay for some time on the grass plot at the side of the road, was denied by Smith, who declared there were no women in either car.

Smith was driving a brand new auto owned by Mary E. Carr of Commonwealth avenue. He took the machine from the garage at 11:31, driving off without a chauffeur. He told the police that he was negotiating the turn into Commonwealth avenue, when the Carroll car appeared, and in some way he lost control.

Mr. Carroll tried to sheer off to avoid the crash, with the result that, as both cars came together, they rode up over the grass plot between two houses into a tree. The front of the Carr machine was demolished. Hollis Burgess, who was riding with Carroll, was hurled into the wind shield, receiving cuts about the face and hands.

When the police arrived, any women who may have been passengers in either car, had disappeared. Mr. Burgess refused assistance, and Smith was formally charged with operating an automobile while he was under the influence of liquor.

SCHEDULE CALLS FOR BIG JUMP IN FARES

Some of the passengers of the Bay State street railway who have been paying 5 cents for a given ride on the road will find themselves obliged to pay 12 cents for a like ride, if the proposed 6-cent schedule is adopted.

This disclosure was made at the fare hearing before the Public Service Commission by Robert M. Feustel, consulting engineer of the road. He explained that this 140 per cent. increase will be caused by the shortening of the fare zones, as the company has undertaken to secure its needed $1,615,165 additional annual revenue by enlarging the number of fare zones as well as by increasing the fare. There are ninteen of these zones, the expert testified.

Anna Shaw, Ill, Heard Voice of Susan B. Anthony

New York, April 29.—Fifty-four woman suffrage leaders gathered in one of the Woman's City Club rooms at the Hotel Vanderbilt to honor the veteran of their cause, Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, who spoke to them after a luncheon.

Dr. Shaw, who had been so seriously ill in the Winter that she had not been expected to recover, told the women what they had not known before, that during the last days of the National Suffrage Convention in Washington last December she was already so ill that it did not seem to her possible that she could live to the close of the convention over which she was presiding.

"I felt myself slipping away, and I was tired," she said. "I did not want to come back. But a voice seemed to say to me: 'Are you a deserter?' and I felt as though our old leader, Susan B. Anthony, had spoken.

"Then I felt that I wanted to live. I was determined that I would live, and if I can do anything to help with the thing I believe I can do best—speaking—that thing I will do."

Hyde Park Folk Dispense Posies Despite O'Meara

This is "Donation Day" in Hyde Park for the benefit of the District Nursing Association. Last year it was "Flower Day" and carnations were sold along the streets, netting the association $1,000.

This year, on account of rulings by Police Commissioner O'Meara, they did not venture to sell along the public ways. Instead they secured stands on private property—close to the sidewalk—and invited pedestrians to "donate" to the association.

Every "donator" was promptly given a pretty carnation, so the net result was the same. The pedestrian got the posy and the association got the cash, an arrangement mutually agreeable.

The work was done by Hyde Park High School girls and members of the women's clubs. The flower stands were placed along Hyde Park, Harvard, Fairmount and Central avenues, River and West streets, Cleary square and along other thoroughfares and squares.

BOSTON MAN IS A PORTLAND SUICIDE

Portland, Or., April 29.—Frank Hamilton, forty-five, registered from Boston, shot and killed himself in his room in the Perkins Hotel here. His farewell note, written in a business man's hand, on good stationery, said: "I am financially and physically ruined; despair drove me to this. Kindly dispose of my body as that of a pauper. There is no one dependent upon me, neither do I, up to this date, owe anybody. I shed tears when thinking about causing the proprietor and officials of the city of Portland such unpleasant trouble. I humbly pray you all to forgive me. The Almighty creating power of the universe will be the final judge.

A big police shift, ordered by Police Commissioner Charles M. Hoyt, goes into effect tonight. It is said to be due to failure of some patrolmen to see the Leyden rioting.

How the Sun Tans and Whitens

A very curious condition which is set up by the action of the sun, tanning the skin and whitening linen, is explained in next Sunday's Boston AMERICAN.

DIVORCES BOSTON MAN

New York, April 29.—Although she is now at Boulogne, France, where she is serving as a Red Cross nurse, Mrs. Ethel Butler Frothingham was granted a divorce from Joseph T. Frothingham by Justice Newburger in the Supreme Court. Mr. Frothingham is a broker and a member of a prominent Boston family.

Mrs. Frothingham alleged her husband had been too attentive to a certain actress here. It developed at the hearing that Mrs. Frothingham's enlistment as a Red Cross nurse was prompted by marital differences.

It was while Mrs. Frothingham was on duty in a France hospital that she received word from her mother, Mrs. Francella Butler Morrison, then in Scotland, that her husband and the actress mentioned were much in each other's company. The plaintiff promptly sent her daughter Ethel, aged seven, to Torquay, England, under the care of a governess, and went to Scotland, engaging a detective agency to shadow the defendant.

Detectives told of having followed the defendant in the company of a brown haired woman. Frothingham, it was testified, took the actress to a hotel on Broadway. James Sweeney, one of the detective witnesses, told of having burst into the room occupied by the couple and finding Frothingham and the woman together.

Mrs. Frothingham was not present in court, and neither was the defendant. Her attorney submitted an affidavit made by her which set forth that she had been married to the defendant in the Marble Collegiate Church in 1907.

The plaintiff asked for the custody of her daughter, adding that she has an income of $10,000.

DIVORCE FOR WIFE IN 'SOUL KISS' CASE

Mrs. Estelle J. Beckett of Somerville, whose divorce case has attracted considerable attention during the week, owing to some unusual letters which were read in court, alleged to have been written by her husband, was today granted a decree nisi by Judge Irwin.

She was given the custody of the two children and alimony of $12 each month. The father, Frederick M. Beckett of Cambridge, will be allowed to see the children at reasonable times.

The letters which were read by Mrs. Beckett's attorney told of "kisses that seem to exhaust the soul," love of the "hundred honeymoon" kind, and of other interesting subjects.

One letter which it was alleged was written by Beckett to a woman, and a portion of which was read by Attorney Clarence W. Rowley, began: "Just a few lines to let you know that I am thinking of the dearest, sweetest and only girl in the world."

RAISE MILL WAGES IN RHODE ISLAND

Providence, April 29.—More than 21,000 cotton mill operatives in Rhode Island start next week with an advance in wages which will put the pay schedule of the industry here on a new high record level.

Although no mention of the amount of increase is made in the announcements posted in the different mills throughout the State, the officers said that following the lead of Fall River and New Bedford, the raise would approximate about 10 per cent.

New York, April 29.—In an endeavor to bring about a speedy trial of Dr. Arthur Warren Waite on the charge of murdering his father-in-law, District Attorney Swann has caused the case to be transferred from the Court of Special Sessions to the Supreme Court. A motion will be made before Justice Shearn on Tuesday to have the date of the trial set for May 15.

It is understood that Mr. Walter R. Deuel, counsel for Dr. Waite, will oppose this early date.

CITY HALL GETS NO POSTAL FAVORS

Postmaster Murray today admitted that he had a postoffice clerk investigate the complaint of Carrier James Lynch, assigned to deliver mail to Mayor Curley and other city officials, that the elevators in City Hall were not running when he got there with the early morning mail.

Recently Mayor Curley complained to Postmaster Murray that he was late in getting his early morning mail. He asked the latter to see that henceforth the mail be delivered on time.

Postmaster Murray thereupon had Carrier James Lynch report. [illegible] Lynch then claimed neither of the two elevators were running at 8 a. m. He was accordingly told to deliver the mail for other buildings and to return with the City Hall mail later.

Postmaster Murray then had Major Barry, a postal clerk, accompany Carrier Lynch to City Hall to see about the elevators. Lynch's claim was verified by Barry, who reported that the carrier had to waste more than ten minutes.

HELD AS GUNMEN IN ROBBERIES

Jacob Dintzer and Peter McDonough, who the police say have been operating as gunmen in Boston during the past two weeks, were held in heavy bail in city court. Dintzer, who is charged with two daring robberies and with breaking and entering, was held in $6,000. McDonough, who is charged with breaking and entering, was held in $5,000.

When arrested Dintzer had a loaded revolver concealed in his right sleeve. McDonough had two loaded revolvers.

McDonough is accused of entering the store of George E. Saunders at No. 168 Washington street and the larceny of goods valued at $85 and with entering the store of Philip Aronberg at No. 172 Washington street and the larceny of property valued at $80.

The police say Ditzer is the "hold-up" man who robbed Patrick T. Desmond, a clerk in a lodging house at No. 17 Kneeland street, at the point of a revolver on April 25. Desmond was in court today and identified Ditzer as the man who called at his desk, gave him a $2 bill, asked for a fifty cent room, flashed a revolver and robbed the cash register of $15.05.

James Farren, night clerk in Rogers' lunch room at No. 1111 Washington street, South End, declared in court that Ditzer threatened his life with a revolver on April 23 and robbed the cash register of $1.15, the manager of the lunch room having previously removed more than $100.

The police say that Ditzer and McDonough were both recently released from Concord. They have since been working together. The police discovered in their room in the South End revolvers and loot which they are alleged to have stolen.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

[illegible] closed strong in New York, many issues being at their high for the day. A few ended at a decline. Marine preferred certificates were the feature, selling as high as 91. Distillers also maintained a highest record price, touching 51½. Both were active. It is understood that the International Mercantile Marine stockholders committee have come to a tentative understanding. Railroads were the weakest stocks and also the dullest. War industrials were strong. Coppers were irregular. The market was unusually active for a Saturday session, transactions totalling 427,000 shares. Trading was almost wholly professional.

Gains at the close included American Can 1, Car & Foundry ¾, American Loco 1½, Baldwin ⅞, Crucible ¾, Marine preferred certificates 2⅝ at 90¼, Distillers 4⅞ at 51⅜, Industrial Alcohol 2⅞, Maxwell 1⅞, Studebaker 2, Inspiration ¾, Kennecott 1, Mexican Petroleum ⅝, Texas Co. 1, N. Y. Air Brake 1, U. S. Steel ¾, Westinghouse ⅝, Utah Copper ¾, New Haven 1, N. Y. Central ⅛ and Canadian Pacific ⅞.

Among declines were Anaconda ¾, Baltimore & Ohio ¼, Chesapeake & Ohio ¼, Erie ⅛, Southern Pacific ⅛, St. Paul ⅛ and Union Pacific ⅛.

The Boston market was firm at the opening but narrow and quiet, with U. S. Smelting the early feature. Later Atlantic Gulf issues also became strong and active. Trading here was comparatively dull all the morning. At the close gains exceeded losses about two to one.

Closing gains included Alaska Gold ⅛, American Zinc 1¼, Butte & Superior ½, Copper Range ¼, Mohawk ⅝, Old Dominion 1, U. S. Smelting ⅝, New Haven ¾, Gulf common 3⅝ and preferred 2.

Among declines were Wooden preferred ⅜, Boston Elevated ¼, Calumet & Arizona 1, Isle Royale ½ and North Butte ¾. United Fruit was unchanged.

Prices had an upward tendency in New York at the start and the list was irregular at the start, with the majority of issues higher. Trading was of fair volume. The earliest price range was rather narrow. Changes were fractional. Sentiment was far more cheerful than it was a week ago. While doubt exists as to what Germany will say next to the United States in regard to submarine boat attacks, a break between the countries is thought less likely. The labor situation is not regarded with as much apprehension as it was a few days since. Increased demand for railway shares is considered significant. It reflects national prosperity better than the boom for war order issues did.

Marine preferred certificates opened at 89½ and within a few minutes sold at 88½, a highest record price. It was one of the most active issues. U. S. Smelting began with a point advance. Most of the trading was in specialties. Coppers were more active than railroads. The latter were quiet.

WHAT WITH OSCAR, SNOW BALLS?

PHILLIES MAKE '16 DEBUT

Hon. Pat Moran in Town with Alexander and his Other Stars for Series with Braves.

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

MANAGER MORAN and his band of champions of the National League are with us for a series with the Braves. They got into town early this morning, being in good shape for the excitement attendant. They do not relish cold weather any more than the other teams in the league and are not any more "mud horses" than the Braves. Still with conditions anywhere near normal there should be some good games, starting this afternoon.

There is but one thing needed, and that is a hot sun to dry out that heavy field and to give the fans confidence that they are to see something like a ball game in something like baseball weather.

The last game played by the Braves in Philadelphia put Sherwood Magee out of the game. Bender hit him on the wrist with a pitched ball, and the hard-hitting outfielder has not been in the game since. He will, however, be there during the present series and do all he can to make it merry for his former team-mates. The way he was hitting prior to his being on the disabled list was enough to give any manager confidence that his team would come through. Sherwood was striking a pace similar to that for which he was noted as a clean-up hitter in Philadelphia.

He came to the Braves to do the same kind of work, and had he come through there would not have been much doubt as to the winner last year in the National League. He didn't, but this year he is there from all the indications, and will help the Braves mightily, unless put out of the game through injury.

P. MORAN'S POPULAR.

The Champions of the National League are a popular organization in Boston, having what can almost be called a Bostonian as their leader, Pat Moran, and William Schettsline as secretary. Bill is about the most popular secretary in the game, and never lets anything bother him, least of all the club. He has been with the team for many years, and to see a Philadelphia club without "Schetts" with it would look strange. He did splendid work during the world's series with the material he had to work with.

Of course everyone will be watching to see what Alexander does and there is Bender to add to the interest in the pitching line. Two old friends of National League fame are with the Phillies, George Whitted and Oscar Dugey. They are former Braves and two good men. Whitted did a major share of the work in keeping the team up in the race, while Oscar is some boy to have around a ball club.

PRACTICALLY SAME TEAM.

The team is practically the same as last season and they have started out in about the same manner cleaning up a few games in the Spring which put them in the lead early from which position the other clubs were powerless to shake them. Everyone was looking for them to crack wide open, but they kept right on winning a majority of their games, having a lead sufficient as it proved to give them the flag.

These games with the Braves are as important as any that will be played in the season. They count just as much and they are likely to be just as hard to get as some that may come in August or September.

The chances for a good field are pretty bad for the rains and the snow have made it very heavy and it will take a hot sun to give them anything like an acceptable playing surface.

JOHNSON TO HURL TODAY

Red Sox Face Speed King Who Longs for Revenge; Babe Ruth Likely to Oppose.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The fighting Red Sox, never feeling better, thanks to their sensational eleven-inning victory over Bill Donovan's Yankees in New York yesterday, arrived here this morning for three encounters with the Nationals.

Walter Johnson is to be sent against the World Beaters. He has been loafing ever since humbling the Athletics Tuesday, and is out to get revenge for the merry mauling the Red Sox slipped him in Boston a fortnight ago. "Babe" Ruth, who always did baffle the clan of Griffith, is Bill Carrigan's slab nominee.

How's the weather? Scarcely any prettier than it is in Boston, thank you. Yesterday's matinee was played under anything but auspicious conditions, but as the Nationals won out, through piling up four counters in the ninth inning, landing in the first division as a consequence, the bugs are happy the game was put on.

OH! YOU DUFFY LEWIS!

As for the Red Sox, they annexed the banner battle of the season in New York. Ray Keating had them blanked up to the ninth. Then, after Hooper, first up, boosted to Baumann, Hobby drew a free ticket. Next Hon. Duffy Lewis, whose specialty is slamming the sphere in the crucial spots, busted one into the left field bleachers. That tied it up.

Nothing doing thereafter until the Red Sox's section of the eleventh. After Janvrin whiffed, Hooper walked and skedaddled to third when Hobby doubled. Lewis gave Peckinpaugh an ugly roller, and while Duffy was expiring at first, Hooper raced home with what proved to be the winning tally. Hobby made third on the play, but was left as Gardner's best was a tall foul spiral to Pipp.

Vean Gregg went to "Dutch" Leonards assistance after the seventh inning. Both Yankee runs were counted while Leonard was on the job. As for Gregg, whom Carrigan said this morning showed his old Cleveland form, he held the Yankees to one hit the four innings he worked.

GREGG AT HIS BEST.

Maisel garnered the lone blow off Gregg when going up first in New York's section of the ninth. Fritz was sacrificed to second by High, but got no further as Baumann sent up an easy spiral to Lewis, and after J. Franklin was slipped free transportation, Gedeon fouled out to Agnew.

Shortstop McBride missed yesterday's game with the Athletics, his right ankle having suffered a slight wrench in Thursday's contest, but Griffith is hopeful George will be able to be on duty.

SPICY MENU TODAY FOR COLLEGE NINES

Harvard's nine plays Vermont at Soldiers Field this afternoon; 3 o'clock. Mahan or Garritt will oppose Spear. Boston College lines up with Georgetown in its first home contest on the University Heights diamond. The third big local college game will be Tufts and Springfield Y. M. C. A. HARVARD AND PENN CLASH

Crimson Four Picked to Make Going in One Mile Relay Championship with Penn's Team.

PHILADELPHIA, April 29.—More track and field records were expected to be lowered when the second and final session of the annual Penn relay carnival is resumed at Franklin Field this afternoon. The big feature of the events which have been saved for today's entertainment is the one-mile college relay championship, in which the best quarter-milers in America will be seen in action.

Pennsylvania, Harvard, Princeton, Chicago and Wisconsin appear to have an even chance for the honors. The crimson, with its quartet of speeders, Pennypacker, Biddle, Wilcox and Bingham, is the favorite in this event. Six records were lowered in the first day of the carnival yesterday. The new and old records follow:

New world's record in one-mile sprint medley relay—Time, 3:28 2-5; former record, 3:33 2-5.

New collegiate and relay carnival record in throwing 56-pound weight—31 feet 5 inches; former mark, 27 feet 4½ inches.

New collegiate and relay carnival record in hop, skip and jump—45 feet 6½ inches; former record, 41 feet 7 inches.

New Pennsylvania record in hop, skip and jump—45 feet 6½ inches, former record, 43 feet 5¼ inches.

New Pentathlon record for 1,500 meters—4:29 4-5, former time, 4:41.

Penn's sprint medley relay team captained by the peerless Ted Meredith ran to a new world's record in the first of the college championship contests, and the other marks were smashed by "Babe" White of Syracuse, with the 56-pound weight; W. C. Carter of Illinois, in the hop, step and jump; Howard Berry, Penn's former all-round star, in the 1,500-metre pentathlon run, and the North East High School of Philadelphia in the Philadelphia High School championship race.

Howard Berry captured the pentathlon, winning every event and turning in a perfect score of five points. Only five men of the dozen entered in the pentathlon competed. Omitting Berry, they were: Nash of Rutgers, Kunkle of Penn State, Creighton of Penn, and Dewhurst of Georgetown.

Meredith picked up the Wisconsin and Chicago men in the first leg of the half-mile relay, and then raced along at Stout's heels to within ten yards of the finish, when he cut loose with his famous sprint. Meredith turned his half in 1:54 4-5 and beat out Stout by five yards.

STECHER KEEPS IT UP.

Baltimore, April 29.—Joe Stecher, the phenomenal Western wrestler, threw Americus in straight falls—2m 10s and 2m 31s. Both falls were gained with the scissors and bar hold.

EVANS ON SCRATCH WITH BOB GARDNER

Chicago, April 29.—Robert A. Gardner, Hinsdale, national amateur champion, and Charles Evans, Jr., Edgewater, Western amateur champion, are the only two scratch men in the handicap list for 1916 of the Western Golf Association, issued today by Crafts W. Higgins, assistant secretary.

D. E. Sawyer, Wheaton, former Western amateur champion, is the only player with one stroke. E. M. Byers, Ingleside; W. C. Fownes, Jr., Oakmont; H. Chandler Egan, Portland, are given two strokes. J. D. Standish, Jr., Detroit; Paul M. Hunter, Midlothian, and H. K. B. Davis, San Francisco, were ranked at three strokes.

ANOTHER RECORD FOR HOWARD DREW

New York, April 29.—Howard P. Drew, the great negro runner of the University of Southern California, established a new record last night at the Smart Set A. C. games at the Thirteenth Regiment Armory. He defeated a small but select field of sprinters in a ninety yard dash in the unprecedented time of 9 seconds. This clipped one-fifth of a second from the old mark, hung up by Drew in this city last Winter.

HARNESS RACING BOOM

Figures, Compiled by Tedd Kline, Show Immensity of the Sport of Kings.

By TEDD H. KLINE.
Associated Editor of Breeders' Journal.

[illegible]

THE immensity of the light harness racing game cannot be appreciated until one has delved rather deeply into the facts and figures concerning it.

Here are the approximate figures covering 1915 which may convey some idea as to the size of the trotting game:

Number of tracks in operation	1,000
Number of meetings	1,100
Average meetings	3 days
Total racing days	3,300
Average purses per meeting	$5,000
Total purses distributed	$5,550,000
Total horses campaigned	11,000
Total valuation of horses	$10,000,000
Total invested in stands, real estate, etc.	$40,000,000
Total invested in stables, sulkies, harness, boots, other equipment	$2,000,000

My figures are conservative. The average purses distributed last year—and which will be eclipsed in 1916—probably were beyond these.

The Grand Circuit, which is the "King-Pin" circuit of them all, has thirteen weeks of racing. At each meeting the average purse was $16,000, which means that this one organization distributed $150,000 in prize money last year.

There are scores of other circuits, where the purses average from $12,000 and $20,000 per meeting down to $1,000.

The Grand Circuit takes in the biggest cities of the East and Middle West. Next in importance comes the Great Western, Springfield, Ill., Indianapolis, Fargo, N. D., Phoenix, Ariz., and Hamline, Minn. This circuit distributes about $125,000 each year among its horsemen.

Prominent among the other circuits are the following: Metropolitan, Lake Erie, Bay State, Kansas & Oklahoma, Ohio, Michigan Short Ship, Coal, Oil & Gas, Hot Fair, Maritime Provinces and Northwestern Pennsylvania.

In 1915 between 10,000 and 11,000 trotters and pacers either raced for money or for records. Figuring that each of these is worth a mere $600 shows that over $6,000,000 worth of horse flesh was exhibited before the public last season. The average of [illegible] probably is low.

Blame and the Love Thief

Two Good Reasons Why Women Should Not Indulge in Love Affairs with Married Men

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

"I HAVE read several of your articles in the AMERICAN, in which I find that in every instance where a girl accepts the attentions of a married man you blame her. Why isn't the man equally to blame for encouraging the girl? He knows wrong from right as well as she, to say the least. A man who would act so is to my mind nothing more than a cur and a love thief combined," writes "An Interested Reader."

I do not blame the woman more than the man in a guilty love affair—but Society does.

It is the woman who pays the great penalty of suffering and social ostracism in a love affair in which the party of the second part is married and so it is the woman who must be more strenuously warned—not more strenuously blamed—by anyone who has a sympathetic attitude for cases of this sort.

Woman suffer tortures of self reproach because of their own moral lapses. Women have to be warned in no uncertain terms against the weakness in their own natures which betrays them to the man who would tempt them. No man ever quite "stole" a girl's heart. He may have attacked it dishonorably, he may have cheated in the whole game of love—but he never fully won unless his "victim" gave him the victory.

There are two perfectly practical reasons—apart from all sentimentality—why women should not indulge in love affairs with married men.

First from the point of view of their own selves: there is nothing in a love affair with a married man—that is, nothing advantageous or desirable. Its net results are generally a broken heart and a ruined reputation even if it stops short of actual disgrace and shame.

With nothing to gain and everything to lose of course I plead with and threaten and scold any girl who is contemplating a liaison with a married man.

In the second place, the woman who steals another woman's husband is, without benefiting herself, impoverishing some one else. Even if she does not break up a home and render little children fatherless, she is destroying another woman's peace of mind and happiness.

Sex loyalty is badly needed for women. Women ought to learn to stand together. Any girl who can be roused to a sense of fairness and to a feeling of loyalty to the wife of the man for whom she cared would scornfully refuse to become a love thief.

The selfish brute of a man against whom my "Interested Reader" so bitterly inveighs cannot work his will against unhappy and foolishly trusting girls if they refuse to let him do so. There are very few cases where girls are abducted in high powered automobiles or given drugged wine!

There are very few cases where innocent and trusting little creatures enter into love affairs to find only too late that the man to whom a young heart is given has already a heart in his keeping! And so I blame women very strongly for making each other's tragedies possible.

If men are brutes why yield to them? If they are weak, why make them weaker? If they have no great faith in womanhood, why justify them in their cynicism?

Whatever the faults of a double standard of morals be, certainly lowering the ideal of womanhood isn't going to better matters. The only way girls can make the world better is by being themselves so good that the men who come in contact with them will not think ever more and more lightly of women and love.

The morals of the race seem to be a sacred trust in the hands of the women of the race. And when they shirk their responsibility they become "slackers" of the most contemptible sort and bring down on their heads a storm of reproach.

Not that I think men better—but that I hate to see women worse—is the reason for my attack on the girls who steal love from another woman. It doesn't matter who is to blame—the point is to get at the most likely person to effect a cure—and that is woman!

Do You Know That—

Just as we talk about John Bull, the French talk about Jean Crapaud, and the Russians about Ivan Ivanovitch.

Buffaloes form a circle when fighting against wolves. The contest often lasts as long as two or three days.

In proportion to its size, Monaco produces a richer royal revenue than any other country.

Italy, Spain and Turkey are the only countries in Europe which do not pay their members of Parliament.

The "bride-ale" custom, which still survives, was the right of a bride to sell ale on her wedding day, at handsome prices, to help furnish the home.

It was an old custom, and still lingers, for the wedding cake to be broken over the bride's head and the pieces of cake scrambled for.

It was deemed especially lucky in old times for a bride to enter her house under two swords crossed in the manner of a St. Andrews cross.

One of the mountains in Ceylon has a remarkable shadow. Instead of lying on the ground, it appears to rise up like a veil in front of the observer. This is due to mist.

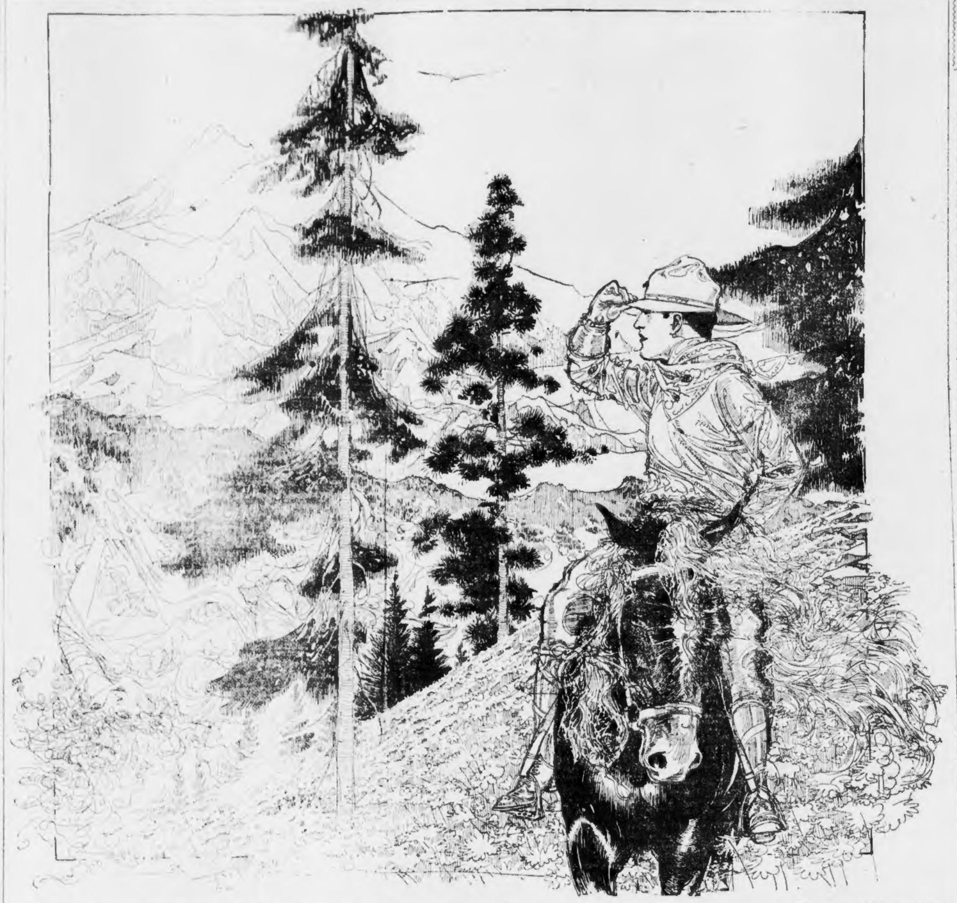
How the World Looks to Him

No. 1—The Mist in the Valley

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1916, by International News Service.



THE Lover understands the twist the world had to the Lady of Shalott—who never saw it as it lay outside her high tower window—but its reflection in the mirror that faced the window; a swimming, high-colored world, glimmering, mysterious, turned about backward, strangely terrifying and luring in its queer sheeny beauty.

The Lover peers upon the world around him with bewitched eyes that see, not out of his window on to dust and trouble, but into Love's mirror, where there is a Woman's shape woven through all the phases of hill-top and tree-bole, mountain wall and trembly-lake, cloud-drift and flower-banner flung over the green knoll, moon-shine and shadow, candle-flame and wind-shapen smoke from his campfire.

She creeps into them all and lies there looking out at him. The flare of the sun-rise is her blown-back gold hair and Her face is the sun at the core. The lake cradles Her face on its sparkling shield. Every child he passes startles him with a line of cheek or chin or a turn of lip that is for a breathless instant subtly Hers. Even the funny old woman turning the corner—how could he?—but his heart almost rolls out between his teeth—looked like the Woman he loved!

Every one looks like Her—ugly and lovely alike. And he has a tender spot in his heart for the funny little girl whom he sees on the glorified train that rushes through his mirror-world, because the back of her neck and the scollops her hair grows in are very like Hers. He stares at her over the top of his paper. Strange—the big world, in a mighty sweep of peak and valley, holds Her against the sky and down in the sea-fog—and the tiny blue flower that he must stoop down to a rock shelter to see is exactly the blue of Her eyes and moves like Her as it nods, a minute dancer, in the wind.

He's a keen-eyed, clever chap—this Lover person; he can lie flat on a broad back and find Her face in the wall-paper anywhere you say! And exactly Hers—if you please. Though you who are stupid and thick do not see that the nose and chin are very like Hers—it looks to you precisely like a fat knight with a ruff around his neck!

A bewitched world lies 'round the man who loves, a world where the hills speak and every tree holds a spirit, every child is faery-flesh—and one Woman's face is the sun in his eyes wherever he looks.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DON'T SPEAK FIRST

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I know a young man whom I like very much. I have been to places he has been, but I have never spoken to him. I see him every day coming and going to work. Will you please tell me a way to speak to him, as I am anxious to know him. If you will please answer it in the paper, I can see it, as we get it every night.

WAITING.

Lynn.

IF you see this young man coming and going to work, presumably he sees you. If he is attracted by your appearance, presumably he would seek an introduction to you, if he is a person of ordinary masculine enterprise. Nevertheless, if you should happen to meet him, say at some social gathering, without his directly seeking it, the acquaintance might prove happy. In a city the size of Lynn you might have a friend or friends who know this young man. But never try to promote acquaintance by speaking to him yourself before you have been introduced. This would lower you in his eyes.

A POOR PROSPECT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl of twenty years old. I have known a young man for eight months. He has asked me to keep company and I did not give him an answer. He is only getting $10 a week and is a gambler, but I really love him and he loves me. I think I could stop him from gambling. Please let me know if I must say yes or no.

M. R. L.

A YOUNG man who earns $10 a week, and who gambles besides, can hardly hope to support a wife. As for "reforming him after we are married," if you try that you are gambling yourself. And a gambler always loses in the end.

DON'T GO ALONE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I had been planning for some time to go to Bermuda with two girl friends this Spring, and now as the time is approaching they both have withdrawn.

I am a business girl of twenty-three, but, nevertheless, my parents think that it is not right for me to travel alone. As I feel perfectly confident of taking care of myself, and feel that their views are rather old-fashioned, I would appreciate hearing whether you think it is perfectly respectable for a girl to take such a trip, and whether you think I could find enjoyment alone.

AUGUSTA.

YOUR parents are right, as parents so frequently are in spite of the lack of faith of the younger generation. A young woman traveling alone does not get quite the respectful consideration a dignified girl wants. She is not in a position to be introduced to the people she would really like to know and she has no way of knowing if the acquaintances she makes are desirable. Her whole trip is likely to be a lonely and disappointing affair at best. Wait for your trip to Bermuda until you can make it in good company.

UNNECESSARY TROUBLE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

A young man escorted me and a friend of mine to a theatre; while there he kissed me. I told him I would not tolerate such actions. I regard him as a friend only. I am in a quandary. He is only nineteen and lives in the same house I do.

ANNA O.

YOU are agitating yourself unnecessarily over the impudent action of a foolish boy. Of course, it was highly improper for this lad to so humiliate you. But why argue about it? If you are not interested in him, simply refuse to have more to do with him. Tell him frankly that you never cared for him—but his impulsive and rude action made you definitely conscious of the fact that you did not care to associate with him.

WHAT MODESTY IS

"Modesty is not a mere matter of covering up the human form. This is what most people seem to think it. There is nothing immodest about anything which will accentuate or draw attention to or interpret the beauty of the human body."—From Lady Duff-Gordon's article on "Modesty Dresses" in tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN.

Anecdotes of the Famous

Many stories are told of the wit of Sir H. Beerbohm Tree, and one of the best is related by Miss Constance Collier. The incident happened while she was rehearsing for the part of the heroine in a production at His Majesty's Theatre. The author of the play was there making various suggestions.

"In this scene," he said, "the hero should pick you up, Miss Collier, and carry you off the stage across his shoulder."

Miss Collier objected, but the author insisted, till Sir Herbert came to the rescue.

"I saw a play in Italy once," said the latter, "in which the hero caught hold of the heroine by her legs and banged her head on the floor."

"Splendid!" exclaimed the author. "What was the play?"

"'Punch and Judy,'" was the actor's retort.

A. E. W. Mason relates a story about a Member of Parliament who received a request from one of his constituents for a ticket of admission to the gallery of the House of Commons. The M. P., in his letter of reply, stated that he was very sorry he could not send the ticket because the gallery was closed. The next day he was astonished to receive from his constituent the following note: "As the gallery is closed will you please send me six tickets for the 'Zoo'?"

In Our Very Wonderful World

"IF you were lost in a desert or in a forest and tried to find your way out,' says a scientist, "you would be almost sure to walk in a circle." This well known fact is due to a slight inequality in the length of the legs. Careful measurements of a series of skeletons have shown that only 10 per cent. had the lower limbs equal in length, 35 per cent. had the right limb longer than the left, while in 55 per cent. the left limb was the longer.

The result of one limb being longer than the other will naturally be that a person will unconsciously take a longer step with the longer limb, and consequently will trend to the right or left, according as the left or right leg is the longer. The left leg being more frequently the longer, the inclination should take place more frequently to the right than to the left, and this conclusion is quite borne out by observations made on a number of persons when walking blindfolded. The inequality in the length of limb is not confined to any sex or race, but seems to be universal in all respects.

No two finger-nails on a person's hands grow at the same rate. The nail on the middle finger grows faster than any other, while the thumb-nail is the slowest growing nail. As a rule, the nails on the right hand grow faster than those on the left. The state of one's health, too, affects the rate of growth. The nails on invalid's hands grow considerably faster than on the hands of a healthy person. Taken on the average, the rate of growth is one-eighth inch a month, or from one inch to one and one-half inch a year.

In the head of a war torpedo is an explosive chamber, which holds damp gun-cotton. This is fired by means of a rod which, on contact with the walls of a ship, is driven in upon a detonator. This fires a primer, which in turn explodes the gun-cotton. The next chamber stores compressed air to the pressure of 2,000 pounds to the square inch. This is practically the boiler-room of the torpedo, for it supplies the motive power to the four-cylinder engine which drives it through the water on its errand of destruction.

Next comes the wonderful gyroscopic control of the air-motor by which the rudders are adjusted. This is where the intricate mechanism of the torpedo is so clearly demonstrated. Should it rise or dip in the water, this gyroscope actuates a motor which in turn operates rods related with the rudders, and at once readjusts any deflections from the course originally set.

The motor mentioned is but a few inches in length, yet the power it exerts by means of compressed air is such that the pressure of one-half ounce operated by the steering-gear produces a pull of 160 pounds on the rudders. This terrible fish's tail holds wheel gearing for the driving of two propellers and the manipulation of the rudders. The propellers revolve in opposite directions, thereby preventing the torpedo describing a circle.

HEADQUARTERS FOR T. R. OPEN IN CHICAGO

By International News Service.

Chicago, April 29.—Preceded by his unqualified endorsement of woman suffrage, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt arrived here today.

The Colonel didn't pussy foot into Chicago. He came with the usual Rooseveltian enthusiasm and snap, and doffed his hat repeatedly in response to cheers from pedestrians.

Simultaneously with his arrival, announcement was made of the opening of Roosevelt headquarters. From now until June 7, Colonel Roosevelt's friends will spare no efforts to convert the Sherman-pledged Illinois delegates to Rooseveltism.

A large committee from the Illinois Bar Association, whose guest he is here, met Mr. Roosevelt. The forenoon was spent quietly in the hotel. The Colonel saw numerous political friends.

Tonight he will speak at a bar association banquet on "National Duty and International Ideals."

Colonel Roosevelt's announcement on the suffrage question aroused tremendous enthusiasm among suffragists.

"I am so glad, but not at all surprised to hear it," said Jane Addams, of Hull House.

CHARLESTOWN GIRL BRIDE OF A JUDGE

Miss Isabelle Morris Curry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Curry, No. 51 Tremont street, Charlestown, and Thomas H. Connelly, justice of the Brighton Court and former secretary to ex-Governor Walsh, were married at 8 o'clock today in St. Mary's Church, Charlestown, by the Rev. James H. Phalen.

The bridesmaid was Miss Mary M. Curry, a sister of the bride, and the best man Judge Edward L. Logan of South Boston. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, which was attended only by the immediate family and a few friends, owing to the illness of Mrs. Curry.

After a wedding trip to New York, Atlantic City and Washington, Judge and Mrs. Connelly will reside at No. 92 Wallingford road, Brighton.

Mrs. Connelly is a graduate of the Boston Girls' High School and Boston Normal School. Her husband is a graduate of Boston English High School and Boston University Law School, and is widely known in political circles.

CAMBRIDGE PLANS TO HOUSE SUNDAY

The Billy Sunday tabernacle will be erected in one of the suburbs, with Cambridge favored because of priority of invitation, in the opinion of many of the campaign enthusiasts. Mayor Rockwood will introduce into the Cambridge City Council Tuesday evening an order granting permission for the building of Sunday's favorite form of meeting place.

Unless further obstacles arise, Sunday will come to Greater Boston despite the failure of the House to pass the tabernacle bill over the Governor's veto.

It has been hinted that the tabernacle committee still prefers Boston to any other location, for several reasons. Announcement of final decision probably will be made next Thursday.

DANIELS PREDICTS MONSTER U. S. NAVY

Philadelphia, April 29.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels, speaking at the American Academy of Political and Social Service, said:

"We have come to a day when we cannot wait for a year to create a navy. My prediction is that Congress will authorize as many battleships, submarines and destroyers as public and private yards can construct. We must spend billions for munitions, and have factories prepared to make them."

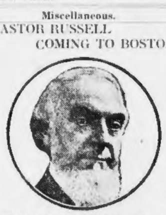
PASTOR RUSSELL COMING TO BOSTON



PASTOR RUSSELL, well-known author and lecturer, will speak in Boston Theatre, Sunday afternoon, at 3 o'clock. His topic will be

"THE WORLD ON FIRE."

Since the outbreak of hostilities in Europe Pastor Russell has been delivering a series of lectures on the great conflict and its place in Bible prophecy. Special attention has been called to these because the Brooklyn pastor has for many years in public lectures and in his books on Bible study, which have attained an enormous circulation, expressed the conviction, based upon the interpretation of Bible prophecies, that a time of intense trouble upon the world would be due in the autumn of 1914. Every day the huge conflagration gains greater momentum, and it narrows itself down to the one question: How long can the noncombatant nations remain neutral? The Pastor maintains the Bible alone gives the answer. You are invited to hear him, as the lecture is free in every way, not even a collection taken.

LYMAN B. JOHNSON preaches at his chapel, 449 Ferry st., Everett, Sabbath, 3 p. m., subject, "The Spiritual Church Not in Politics of This World, Yet the World's Only Hope"; all welcome.

He Laughs Best Who Laughs Last

THE following is an interesting letter from a citizen of Mansfield concerning an alleged condition of taxation in the town of Mansfield:

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—I see by the Boston AMERICAN of April 4, 1916, that you have been asked by the moneyed interests to use the influence of your powerful paper to get their stock, capital, buildings, machinery, stocks, bonds, mortgages, etc., etc., exempt from taxation.

Now in behalf of the small house owners whom you have always encouraged to buy homes and a few acres of land, I appeal to you to help these homes from being taxed out of existence, as is being done at the present time.

As an illustration of thousands of cases, I bought two acres of land according to your advice. It was assessed for $80 an acre. The assessment soon came up to $250 an acre, while the selling price of my land had not increased and the adjoining land had not been raised in assessment. Merely I was not in the "ring." I spoke to the chairman of the assessors and his reply was: "If a man kicks on his taxes we jump on him all the harder."

Within a stone's throw of my house is a factory which, with its machinery, cost more than $100,000 and it is taxed for $30,000. Land near me and worth a great deal more than my land is taxed for $50 an acre.

I get $19 a year from signs and the signs are assessed for $50. My rich neighbors have more signs than I have and they are not assessed a single cent for their signs.

I attended some of the Tax Commission meetings at the State House and a city assessor told me: "The rich man has known enough to get his money and he will know enough to keep it, and you will never live to see the rich man pay taxes on the same basis that the poor man pays."

Foreign nations have been encouraging home building and Belgium has taught the world how home owners will fight for their homes.

In this State we are taxing the homes out of existence and making multimillionaires out of those already excessively rich.

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, speaking of preparedness, said: "The real trouble is we are not physically prepared." He is quoted as calling the United States a nation of physical degenerates.

Vice-President Thomas R. Marshall, speaking in Brockton, April 8, 1916, said: "When a man comes to this country and takes the oath of allegiance, that man is a better American than those born here."

Instead of making good citizens, we rob the good citizen and he becomes a bad one. Instead of encouraging home building, we rob the home owner and make it necessary to restrain him with temperance laws and in prisons.

The rich have their organizations. The small home owners have thus far but one choice—the road leading to degradation and crime.

Millions are praying for some power like the Hearst AMERICAN to espouse the cause of the home owner and put a stop to this robbery by unjust taxation.

Yours, H. C. WILMARTH.
Mansfield.

It is undoubtedly true that men who have an instinct for acquiring money will always have an advantage in overreaching the rest of mankind by getting a little more than their fair share of governmental privileges and assuming a little less of its burdens. The very faculties which enable them to acquire money give them a superiority in the ways by which special privileges are acquired. These are often very unlovable qualities, which a majority of the citizens would not want to possess.

It is vain to rail at them or to rail at the public authorities who are quite often their victims. The citizens who want to protect themselves from being thus over-reached must take an interest in politics, must defeat the "owned" assessors and all other "owned" candidates for public office. Probably it will be found that, if every citizen took as much care to protect his interests as the successful citizen took to do a little more than protect HIS interests, he would have no cause to complain.

The taxation problem in Massachusetts is perplexing. Often the assessors make a discrimination in favor of factories under the honest, but mistaken, notion that it is better for the town to keep the industry and get SOME taxes from it than to lose it altogether, and thus have the taxes thrown entirely upon the rest of the citizens. One way to meet this difficulty is to have the taxing on that kind of property uniform throughout the State and collected by the State and turned over to the citizens of a town where the property is located.

Ultimately we shall be obliged to come to this reform and then soon we shall be obliged to secure uniform national laws, for the manufacturers will play one State against another, just as they are now playing one town against another. Indeed, they are already playing one State against another.

The taxation reform which is passing the State Legislature this year is a fraud on the citizens—a gross and despicable fraud, one in which every member of the Massachusetts Tax Association ought to feel a sense of personal shame. These gentlemen think that they are doing something very smart, but they are really building worse than they know. Not all the men whom they believe are their dupes are quite so foolish as these tax dodgers believe them to be.

The great political divisions of the future will be over questions of taxation. Cheap little tricks which these tax-dodgers are now playing will come home to roost soon, and these gentlemen, if they live a few years longer, will see that in the long run honesty is the best policy. Never again will anybody trust them until their hands are up.

HAS IT EVER HAPPENED TO YOU?

The Shortcomings of Weather Science

Good as Far as It Goes, but Doesn't Go Far Enough—Sun Has Secrets Yet Unknown to It—Insects Sometimes Wiser Than Barometers.

By Garrett P. Serviss

THE most imperfect science is meteorology, the science of the weather. The test of a science is its ability to predict phenomena that obey the laws it is supposed to have discovered. In this respect meteorology falls far short. The margin of error in its calculations is sometimes enormous—sufficient to completely reverse a prediction.

The Weather Bureau is a useful institution, based upon an incomplete system of correlated facts of observation, which are scientific, as far as they go. But there are elements concerned in the production of weather about which the methods of meteorology give no information, and which are not taken into account by any of its theories.

There are birds, insects and four-footed animals which have an incomparably greater foreknowledge of weather changes than the entire scientific corps the Agricultural Department possesses.

When the predicters of the Weather Bureau give warning of an approaching storm they act on very much the same principle as that on which a railroad timetable is based. A train having been announced by telegraph as started on a given line, will arrive, in regular succession, at certain points along that line, and a station agent at any given point can, if no accident intervenes, foretell the moment of the train's arrival at his station.

Storm centres, or cyclones, moving across the country are, in some ways, comparable to trains following a time schedule. But, unfortunately, they do not run on rails, they are not driven by an invariable force, they are subject to interruptions and obstacles of many kinds, and instead of always keeping the track and following the course, they frequently wander vaguely about or take an unexpected turn or else fade away like exhausted whirls in water.

In fact, the Weather Bureau predicters are in the same quandary in which train dispatchers would find themselves if railroad tracks were shifting lines, continually drifting this way and that, getting crossed and entangled or sinking into suddenly formed quagmires and thus disappearing for good!

Meteorology, as a science of weather prediction, fails just because it possesses too few facts. With the aid of the telegraph the Weather Bureau can, if lucky, follow the trail of a storm centre across the United States, but it cannot tell just how a new storm is born, nor just when or where it will begin its course.

The one only great fact on which it bases its whole system of prediction is the general tendency of cyclonic disturbances in this country to travel eastward, with a northerly trend, while storms originating around the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean Sea, usually come up the coast.

But the official weather prognosticators are as much in the dark as the ordinary citizen concerning what is going to happen in the atmosphere next week, and they really know nothing about any storm until after it has begun its career, and then all that they know is (from general principles), the course that it will take—in case it doesn't happen to change its mind!

The conduct of the weather during the past three months has been sufficiently surprising to show how immensely desirable it is that we should have some means of forecasting the varying character of the seasons. Why have we snow in April this year? What recognizable causes have been at work to make the present Spring so different from the corresponding season in 1915?

A slight variation in the intensity, or quality, of the radiation received from the sun might account for these things, and recent investigations show that such variations occur, but what is needed is more accurate knowledge about them and their effects.

The present is a period of maximum sun-spottedness, and generally when spots are numerous and large on the sun the air temperatures on the earth are lower, and, in some regions, storms are more frequent and violent. But all this is knowledge of so vague and general a nature that it throws but a glimmer of uncertain light upon the subject of weather vagaries.

Meteorology tells us about temperatures and barometric pressures, about degrees of humidity and of aridity, but it misses something else, which is evidently of essential importance. Heat and light are only two of an infinite number of forms of vibration sent to us from the sun. Everybody knows that when the weather records show that two days are precisely alike in temperature, in humidity, etc., human nerves prove that they are vastly unlike in some unnamed peculiarity which affects the springs of life.

The spider, busily and confidently spinning her webs in preparation of fine weather which some unerring mechanism of foreknowledge within her enables her to detect, is a surer guide than a barometer. She responds to vibrations as yet only guessed at by science, and so, perhaps, do the supersensitive nerves of many human creatures.

Wooing the Muse

By William F. Kirk

THE young Spring poet threw his coat
Across the narrow hall.
"How well do I recall," he wrote,
Then started to recall.
His fair young wife came to his aid
And finished up the line:
"How well do I recall," she said,
"That last year's hat of mine!"

"The steeds of time are running wild,"
The poet said aloud;
"The long days coming—mild—child—smiled"——
The rhymes came in a crowd.
The rhymes came faster than the thoughts
Of what he had to say:
"They're running wild," his young wife smiled,
"The rent is due today."

"I would I were a bird," he wrote,
"Beside my loving mate;
The music from my bursting throat
Would come in gladness great."
His fair young wife raised up her head—
She had her singer treed:
"If you and I were birds," she said,
"You couldn't earn our seed!"

The NAKED TRUTH About MODEST GOWNS

Lucile Says a Little Chiffon Can Make a Modest Dress Sometimes—A Slap, Too, at Some Puritan Beach Suits—Does She Mean Boston Ones?—It's a "Pip," Anyhow, This Article—The Duke of Manchester Says the Poor Are Happiest—Also a Millionaire's Bridal Woes at Beverly—Among the Many Features of Tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN.

Mrs. Blank of Jamaica Plain has been talked into buying a gown and Mr. Blank sees her in it—or mostly out of it, as he thinks—so he says:

"You can't wear that thing. I tell you it's not modest. What some of you nice women will try to show yourselves in is the doggoned limit."

Who wins? Who won in YOUR home, when that old argument came up?

Have a little help from the Sunday AMERICAN tomorrow on the matter. Lady Duff Gordon—Lucile y'know—has a full-page article, liberally illustrated, on the timely subject of "MODESTY DRESSES."

Here's a sample: "Modesty is not a mere matter of covering up the human form—to my mind there is nothing so lacking in modesty as the bathing suits which some of the Puritan beaches in this country insist upon."

How about it, Mr. Metropolitan Park Commissioners?

But Lucile goes on to say: "A modest dress will still be modest even if it is only a few yards of chiffon, so long as —"

So long as what? Ah, read the AMERICAN tomorrow and find out. See the pictures which Lucile offers to prove her arguments. The article and pictures explain to women readers particularly just how they may dress prettily and stylishly and modestly.

Remember Edward B. Alsop, the Pittsburgh millionaire? At seventy-five he married Effie Pope Hill, only twenty, who was willing to be "an old man's darling." But there was a divorce trial, at which the septuagenarian bridegroom told how love became all snarled up.

Did you know that the Alsops lived in Beverly, right on our North Shore, during the Summer of 1913? Mr. Alsop told about that Beverly Summer—and a lot of other things—in court and his testimony makes a whole page of mighty entertaining reading in tomorrow's AMERICAN.

The "Intimate Peep" page this week is devoted to Miss Jean Sothern. She is the winsome maid who has the role of charming Myra Maynard in the "MYSTERIES OF MYRA," the new psychic novel and motion picture serial dramatized by Charles W. Goddard and filmed by the International Film Service. The instant popularity of both serial and film make "intimate" pictures of Miss Sothern timely.

A father works. The mother works. The two make a good enough living. And their five-year-old boy has been working, too—working into the night. Not just fooling around at a little work-fun, but working at labor. TOILING—at FIVE years—at NIGHT—do you GET it?

Two older children, too. But the little five-year-old shaver working his baby fingers off into the night to swell a family income. This was near Boston, right in Massachusetts. As a child-labor sample it was a dazzler.

Hello, Salem? Are you there? Listen—you remember Arthur P. Howard? Ssh, ssh, shouldn't use such language, such a venerable old city like you. Well, you know Arthur is back from Vermont. He has dashed off a few nifty recollections and thoughts and things about Salem, where he used to be Mayor and such.

That will interest Salem, of course. But speaking of local application—there will be special pages for Somerville and Cambridge in tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN. Order today if you live in Som. or Camb.

Are you "broke?" You are happy. The Duke of Manchester says it—or at least he says the poor are happiest. It's a full-page article, too, right from the ducal pen and right to the ducal point.

EXTRA—THEODORE ROOSEVELT WILL DELIVER TONIGHT A SPEECH VITAL TO THE TROUBLED TIMES—MEXICO—EUROPEAN MATTERS—PREPAREDNESS—NATIONAL DUTY and INTERNATIONAL IDEALS—and YOU, Mr. Man and YOU and YOU will wish to read what ROOSEVELT SAID. READ IT in tomorrow's AMERICAN.

A woman's crowning glory is her hair. It may not be a man's, but a little hair on the head, now and then, is relished by the wisest man, as it were. Hence a lively interest in an article on "Science and Your Hair," the first in a series for men and women on why the hair gets sick and how to cure it.

It's really a question which article the women readers will turn to first—"Modesty Dresses" or the one on hair.

The horrible dreams that soldiers have is an impressive feature and so is "The Girl, the Judge and the Vindictive Novelist." The latter is a two-page narrative about George Brownson Howard, pretty Teddy Girard and indignant Judge Corrigan.

Boston hearts beat fast for troubled Erin.

What is really going on in Ireland? And why? The latest details of the sensational situation in Dublin, as contained in news dispatches. In addition to this there will be a special article on the Dublin uprising by Victor Herbert.

Speaking about preparedness—order your Sunday AMERICAN now for tomorrow's reading.
